Employee shot in robbery attempt

■ Robber flees store at Country West shopping center after shooting employee in the chest

By Steve Marschke

A 25-year old employee of the Grocery Outlet on West Capitol Ave. near Harbor Blvd. was hanging on to his life yesterday after being shot in an early morning attempted robbery of the store.

The victim, Anthony Cavazos, was listed in critical condition after several hours of surgery yesterday. Lt. Dave Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Dept. said as far as police were aware, Cavazos was "hanging in there" as of late Tuesday afternoon.

The incident occurred at about 5:40 a.m., when the suspect knocked at the back door of the store at 3015 West Capitol Ave. Believing a delivery was being made, employees opened the door and were confronted by a gunman in a ski mask.

According to a police report, the gunman herded Cavazos and another nearby employee to a walk-in freezer in the store room of the store, and then went to bring the other two employees in the store to the same location. When returning towards the freezer, the gunman confronted Cavazos, who had freed himself from the freezer.

The would-be robber fired his handgun twice, striking Cavazos once in the chest.

The gunman fled. Farmer said as far as police can tell, he did not get away with any money or merchandise.

Cavazos was taken to the University of California, Davis, Medical Center in Sacramento, where he underwent several hours of surgery and was listed in critical condition later Tuesday.

Police have only a vague description of the suspect, whom they describe as a male, approximately 5' 7" to 5' 10" tall, with a slender build. He was last seen wearing dark clothing.

Anyone who was in the area of the store between 5 and 6 a.m., and who saw any suspicious persons nearby is asked to call the West Sacramento Police Department at 372-2461.

Pecan St. residents seek stop signs at Michigan intersection

Residents at 16 dwellings on Pecan St. have filed a petition requesting a two-way stop sign on Pecan where it intercepts Michigan Blvd. in West Sacramento. But because the traffic conditions on the street don't meet minimum requirements for that kind of traffic control, the request was initially rejected by city staff.

The issue has been appealed to the West Sacramento City Council. A report by the city's traffic committee suggests the council allow the stop signs at all three entries to the T-shaped intersection, and waive the fees paid by residents to file the appeal "based on the concerns of the neighborhood."

The traffic committee also raised issues related to possible crosswalks at the site, but those issues will not go for a vote before the city council at tonight's meeting.

The stop sign issue, will, however, be presented for a council vote. Tonight's city council meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at 2101 Stone Blvd., second floor.

Local students in fair

A number of West Sacramento youngsters are participating in displays at the Sacramento County Fair, which goes Thursday through Sunday at Cal Expo in Sacramento.

Among them are Delta High School (in Clarksburg) students Jason and Jelena Puumala, Carl and Wally Enos, Brian Cheechov, David Dyste, Cole Gould, Albert Barnes and Marissa Lira, who will all be showing hogs and sheep at the show as part of their participation in Future Farmers of America.

The FFA program is taught by Gilbert Lopez and is not available at River City High School in West Sacramento.

Also, the fifth grade class of teacher Barbara Schwartz at Westmore Oaks School in West Sacramento has built bird houses for entry in the exhibits portion of the fair.

Briefing on Prop. 208:

City staff to explain limits on campaign reform law

West Sacramento will get a briefing on how it is affected by state campaign reform law at the West Sacramento city council meeting at 7 p.m. tonight.

The briefing, to be given by city staff, is intended to show how the city is affected by the passage of state ballot initiative Proposition 208 in November, 1996.

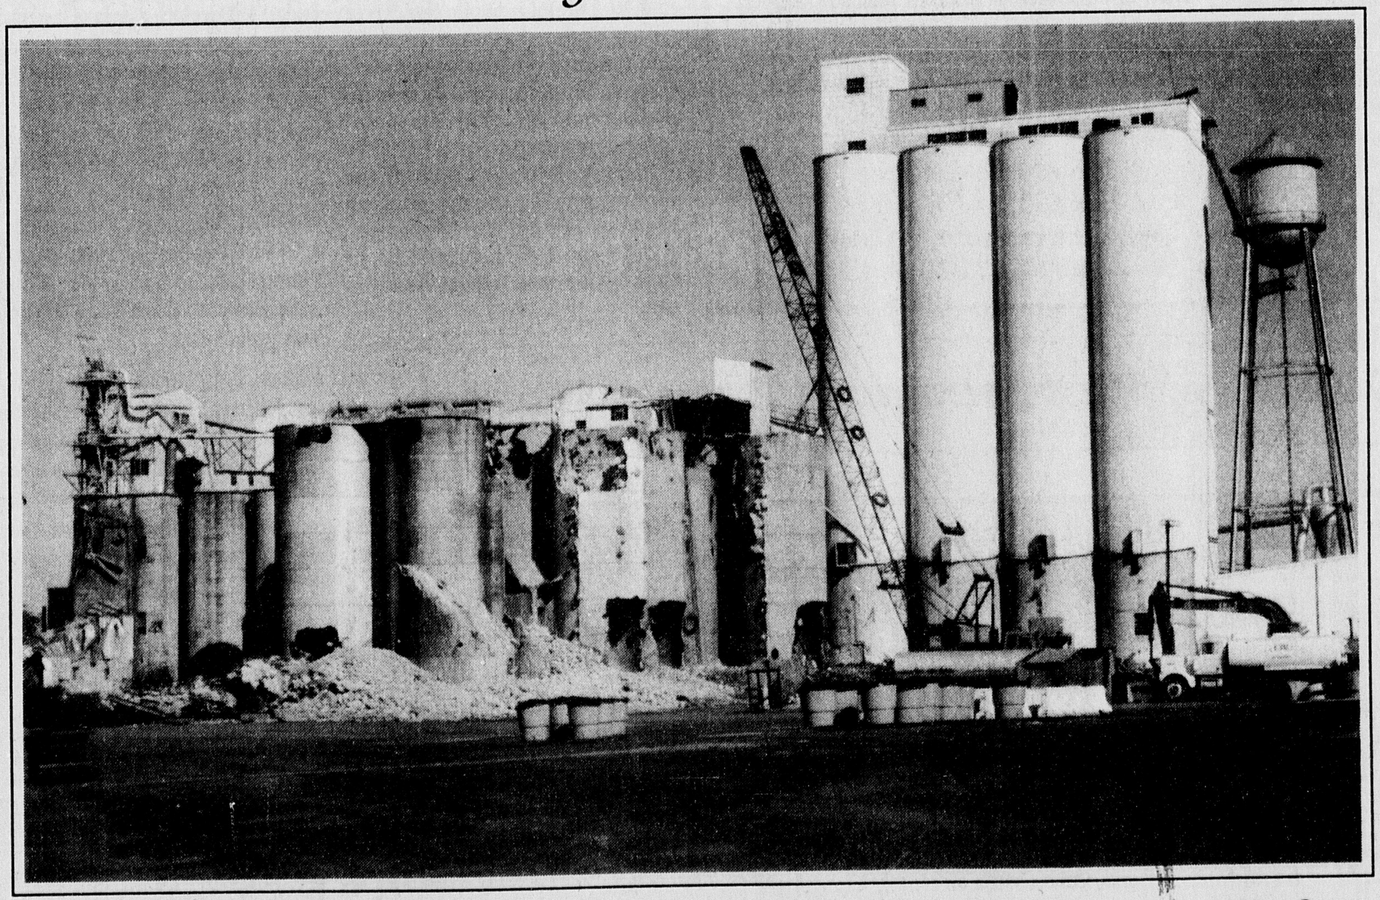

The ballot initiative affects donations to local campaigns for a city council seat, but does not address donations to local ballot measures. It supersedes less rigorous local political reform laws, but allows local jurisdictions to adopt political contribution laws more strict than those in Prop. 208.

West Sacramento has a campaign reform law which restricts donations to a city council campaign or ballot measure committee to $250 per donor. Prop. 208 supersedes the part of this which pertains to council campaigns, restricting donations to $100 per person.

However, the $100-per-person donation level for a city office campaign can be lifted to $250 if the city adopts a total campaign spending limit for a campaign. This limit can be set as high as one dollar per resident

Demolition underway

Scanvik, the Norwegian concern which owns the South River Road abandoned rice mill structure where a West Sacramento girl died while playing with friends in January, has begun demolition of the buildings on the site. Heidi Ubrick, 13, died in a fall within the structure while playing with two friends on a rooftop. Her body was not located until a week later. The girl was a Golden State Middle School student.

Notes from the local artists' guild

From Bill Leek
The West Sacramento Art Guild

Last year was a very successful year for our art guild. Members contributed to several shows at county fairs, the Turner Library and other galleries. Currently some of our works are being exhibited at Togo's Restaurant on West Capitol Avenue.

At our meetings we have had art technique demonstrations and workshops.

So far this year, some of our members have entered the Yolo County Fair in Woodland and the Dixon May Fair. We are planning to have an Art Guild members' show some time around November and December. This is enough lead time to create an original masterpiece for the occasion.

For other art shows in the area, we will make their places and dates available at our meetings.

We have been invited by the City Planning Commission for input for planning the new City Hall.

We are looking for new members for our Guild. Anyone who creates art at any level and those who are just interested in art are encouraged to join. The yearly dues are $5.00.

Our next meetings are as follows: May 28; June 25; September 24; October 29; November

West Sac may push for airport service

Sacramento's Regional Transit board has stalled on the matter of approving service by Yolo County's public bus line from Davis, Woodland and West Sacramento to the Sacramento International Airport, even though YoloBus vehicles currently travel routes taking them immediately past the airport.

But the matter will return for an RT vote May 12, and West Sacramento city staff has asked its city council to express approval of a resolution supporting the idea at the West Sacramento City Council meeting tonight.

The Yolo County Transit Authority has received $920,000 of $1.3 million in federal grant money to approve the two year airport bus service project, and the Yolo-Solano Air Quality Management District has allocated an additional $40,000 for the airport "corridor service."

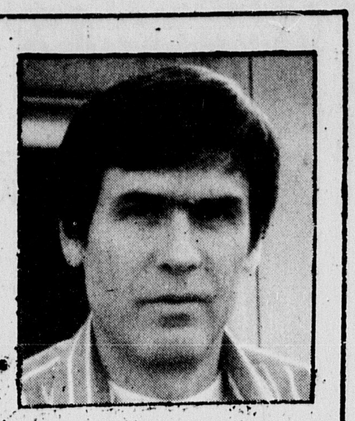

But the RT board on April 28 has expressed concern about how the bus service might be funded after the grant money runs out, and about the fact that YoloBus is not a union bus service, in contrast to the Sacramento Rapid Transit operation.

Because the airport is within the boundaries of the RT district, the RT board has authority to determine whether YoloBus may stop at the airport.

West Sacramento city council members Christopher Cabaldon and Mark Montemayor, who serve as the city's representative and alternate representative to the Yolo County Transit Authority, have asked that a resolution in support of the airport bus service be prepared for a council vote tonight.

Letting the kids do some of the grocery shopping

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

The other evening my two oldest sons made the huge mistake of strolling into the kitchen and asking their mother, who was busy slaving away at the stove, what she was cooking for dinner. When she didn't answer, one of them decided to add, "So, is it supposed to be a state secret or what?"

I happened to be only a few feet away and a big grin sped over my face as I patiently waited for the axe to fall. "Food is for dinner," said my wife much more calmly than I thought she would. "I'm cooking food, just like I do every night. Now would both of you please go clean up. It's almost done."

"But what is it?" demanded Ty, not knowing when to leave good enough alone as usual.

"It's food!" repeated my wife with emphasis.

"It better not be chicken," said Paul, bending over at the waist and attempting to peek inside the stove.

"If I was you guys," I mercifully interjected, "I'd get out of here before somebody gets hit with a frying pan."

"But why can't she just tell us what she's cooking?" Ty whispered over to me.

"Because it's the one-hundredth-million time I've been asked that question!" said my wife, whose hearing is by far the best in the house.

"Oh, no," said Paul with horror as he looked inside the stove, "it is chicken!"

"That does it!" said my wife. "All of you -- out!"

Once we were all safely in the living room, I explained to my sons that their mother has prepared (by my count) over 25,000 meals for her family over the years and that she no longer particularly enjoys hearing the question, 'Hey, what's for dinner?'. "She is also quite tired of running over to Raleys three or four times a week trying to find something you two picky eaters will actually put in your mouths," I added.

"But she knows we hate chicken," said Paul.

"Your mother makes great chicken," I said. "She can't help it if you guys hate just about everything that doesn't have sugar in it."

"But she never buys stuff we like," said Ty.

"You mean she never buys the garbage you like," I said.

"I just don't get it," said Paul. "What can be so hard about shopping for food?"

"I tell you what," I volunteered heroically, "why don't I do the grocery shopping this week?"

"Oh, no, Dad," pleaded Ty, "please, that's even worse! When you go shopping, you always buy all that cheap generic stuff. I almost barfed after eating a bowl of those Sunny Select Honey Nut Tasteeos you brought home the last time."

"Then how about this," I suggested. "Why don't you two do the shopping this week?"

"You're kidding?" asked Paul with a smile.

"Not at all," I assured them. "We'll give you fifty bucks to start with. If you do a good job, I'm sure your mother would be more than happy to hand the whole thing over to you."

"You got a deal!" said Ty. "When can we go?"

"Right after you finish your chicken dinner," I told them.

Later than night, obviously proud of how quickly they had done their shopping and equally pleased that they had managed to stay within five dollars of their budget, my two oldest sons marched into the house -- grocery bags in hand.

"That was fast," said my wife as we followed them into the kitchen.

"This grocery shopping thing is a piece of cake," Ty assured his mother as he and his brother began to unload their haul.

The following list of nutritious food items is taken directly from the $55.19 Raleys sales strip (#0448-0006-0047) which Paul handed me: SSF Cookie Ice Cream; Dreyers Frn/Vanilla Wafers; Mott Apl/Jce; Chips Ahoy Cookies; Dr. Pepper; Skippy Cream Peanut Butter; Dorito Macho Chips; Hostess Twinkies, QTY 6; MM Fruit Punch; Hostess Ho-Ho's; SSF Krunch Bars; Choc Jello; Twizzlers Cherry; Apples Small Red; BV Lemon Pie QTY 6; Captain Crunch Cereal; Planters Peanuts; Hor Chili; SSF Choc Chip Ice Cream; Van de Kamps Fish Sticks; Betty Crocker Strawberry Swirl Cake; Oscar Mayer Bacon; Newtons Apple Cinnamon; Snapple Mango Madness.

"And do you know what's really neat about the things we bought?" Ty asked his mother as she searched high and low to see if they had at least brought home some bread and milk.

"What?" she asked, looking over at me as if I was a fool for having turned them loose in a grocery store with fifty dollars.

"You're not even going to have to cook most of this stuff, Mom."

Town Hall Talk

A Whole Lotta Construction Going On

City construction activity has been at a fast pace this spring with several major projects underway around town.

The new bridge into the southern half of West Sacramento is nearing completion well ahead of schedule. The Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge will be opening in mid-June connecting Industrial Boulevard to Jefferson Boulevard. Completion of the Bridge will provide a second access to Southport and allow development to begin again in the Southport area. The total project, including road improvements, engineering, right-of-way and management, will cost $20,000,000. This will be paid for by a Federal Grant and funds from developers. The project also replaced a deteriorated section of sewer main in Industrial and Stone Boulevards, and will improve sewer flows and reduce infiltration from groundwater.

Another highly visible improvement at the Jefferson Interchange is nearing completion. Paving was recently completed for modifications which added a second left-turn lane on the westbound off-ramp. Failed sections of the roadway were repaired and other minor modifications to medians, signals and lanes were made which should improve the traffic flows through this busy area.

A less visible, but equally important construction, project nearing completion is the creation of a second clear well at the Bryte Bend Water Treatment Plant. The clear well is an underground storage tank for treated water. The second clear well will provide additional storage to meet demand at peak water flow periods. It will also allow for insurance capacity in the event the treatment plant or the existing clear well needs to be shut down for service.

The City's annual program to replace deteriorated and undersized residential water lines continues to move along steadily. Improvements in the Westfield neighborhood were completed in December. The next project - the 6th Street Area Water Line Project - is scheduled for May and will replace lines on 6th Street, Cummins Way, Welland, James, Alvin, Elizabeth, California, William, Andrew, and 8th Streets. Work is beginning on 3rd Street between "C" and West Capitol which will involve replacing the undersized existing water line, and street reconstruction and widening by the Money Store. This work will be done by the Raley's Landing contractor with City inspection.

Later this summer, work will begin on a reconstruction/overlay of Cebrian St. This badly deteriorated road will be receiving more traffic with the completion of the Palamidessi Bridge since it will be the only connection eastbound between Harbor Boulevard and Stone Boulevard.

The Sports Insider

The Sacramento Kings are rumored to be ready to hire interim coach Eddie Jordan for the next season. Jordan, 42, took over for Garry St. Jean, who was fired on March 20, and coached the final 15 games, compiling a 6-9 record.

The Kings will still owe St. Jean for next year about $1 million, so Jordan will sign a contract that won't pay him anywhere near the dollars the Boston Celtics are going to offer Kentucky coach Rick Pitino. Pitino, 44, is being offered a 10-year, $70 million contract with three percent ownership of the Celtics. The Celtics last year were 15-67 -- the worst record in franchise history.

The Washington Bullets also will be making some new changes for next year, including a ne name (Wizards) with new colors and logo.

The second round of the best-of-seven NBA playoffs started on Sunday. In the Western Conference, the Utah Jazz lead the Los Angeles Lakers and should win the series in five games.

The Houston Rockets beat Seattle on Monday and should win this series in six games.

The Eastern Conference should have defending champion Chicago Bulls beating the Atlanta Hawks in six games.

The New York Knicks and Miami Heat should create a very interesting series. Miami coach Pat Riley, who coached the Knicks, should be able to give the Knicks a few headaches. The Knicks in seven games!

The only prediction I want to make right now is that the Bulls will NOT repeat this year! The NBA's new champion will be the winner of the Houston vs. Utah series. Houston, that's right, and you read it here first!

The A's (14-17) are in fourth place and in desperate need of pitching. The A's pitchers are getting rocked back East, as their ERA rose to 5.58. The good news is they are still scoring runs, and Mark McGwire is hitting some home runs that are being measured by MCI at over 500 feet! The A's continue their longest road trip of the year, playing at Milwaukee and finishing a four-game series this weekend in Chicago.

The Giants, on the other hand, are doing a little better, with a record of 19-10 and they're currently in second place. Their pitching staff ERA of 2.98 is second in the league, behind the world champion Atlanta Braves. The Giants are home this weekend against the Chicago Cubs. Sunday's game is a Mother's Day special, with free caps to the first 25,000 fans.

See ya next week -- Happy Mother's Day!!

RC tennis still on overdrive

From River City High School

The River City High School Tennis Team continued its romp through the 1997 Golden Empire League schedule this past week with another pair of lopsided wins. On Tuesday, Golden Sierra came to the Raiders home courts and were shutout 9 to 0. Thursday had R.C. on the road at Marysville where the defending G.E.L. champs won 8 to 1. The Raiders are now 7 and 0 in league matches and 21 and 0 overall. Colfax at 5 and 2 and Lindhurst at 4 and 2 are chasing River City for the league lead and the Raiders must visit those two schools in the next two weeks.

In the Golden Sierra contest, boys singles players Ahmad Fazel and Jeff Wright struggled through their first and second sets, respectively, before pulling out third-set victories -- Fazel 2-6, 7-6, 6-2 at #1 and Wright 6-3, 2-6, 6-1 at #2. Girls singles players, #1 Meuy Saechao and #2 Douangchanh Lattasima, remained unbeaten with easy wins against both the Grizzlies and at Marysville against the Indians.

In the #1 doubles positions, neither the boys team of junior Sarom Phoung and sophomore Phoungeun Souvannaphoungeun nor the girls team of senior Bethany Monroe and junior Aenoy Xayasone have lost a match in G.E.L. competition. Both duos posted 10-5 wins against Golden Sierra. At Marysville, the boys team broke open a close match to triumph 10-6 while Monroe and Xayasone crushed their opponents 10-1.

This week, the Raiders travel to Colfax for a match that will go a long way to determining not only the league championship but perhaps also second and third place as well. Only the top two teams in the final league standings make the Sac-Joaquin Section team playoffs. Tomorrow, R.C. will host Lincoln at 3:30 p.m. This will be the Raiders last regular season home match of 1997, but perhaps not their last home match overall. Should they win the G.E.L. championship, they will host a playoff match on Tuesday, May 27.

Finding out RC's strongest students

By Josh Branham
Staff Writer
River City High School 'Review'

River City High School's strongest men and women will be competing in a "Powerlifter of the Year" competition at RCHS on Friday, May 9, from 6 to 8 p.m. in the gym. Attendance cost is $1.50 per person, and $1.00 for students with a current student body card.

This event started in 1995 to determine the top RCHS powerlifters in the following categories: men's open and men's strength-to-weight, and women's open and women's strength-to-weight.

Each competitor has three attempts at bench press, squat and deadlift. The single best lift in each event is recorded. In the open divisions, the total weight of all three best lifts determines the winner. In the strength-to-weight divisions, the total weight of all three best lifts is totalled, then divided by the body weight of the lifter.

Contestants:

Men's Open: Marty Trevino, Steve Hawkinson and Will Welcher.

Women's Open: Melissa Aguilar, Dawn Noel and Margo Palencia.

Men's strength-to-weight: Calvin Bell, Yevgeny Stetsenko and Don Timas.

Women's strength-to-weight: Kristin Pruitt, Alyssa Murphy and Sarah Lesly.

Past winners in 1995-96 in men's open was Sam Savala, and Angel Cardenas in the men's strength-to-weight. For women's open 1995, the winner was Sofia Savala, and in 1996, Margo Palencia. For women's strength-to-weight in 1995-96, Sheri Manasero.

News-Ledger Editorial

Under fire

Yesterday, a young man took a bullet and nearly lost his life as someone tried to rob a popular Harbor Blvd. store.

The circumstances surrounding that robbery aren't yet entirely clear. But it appears from initial police reports that the man was herded to a store freezer by the robber and then escaped it, when he encountered the gunman and was shot.

As of Tuesday afternoon, the 25-year old victim was still alive. No suspect had been arrested.

There have also been at least two "takeover" style robberies of local banks in the past year or so. In each of these cases, a couple of suspects entered the bank carrying serious firepower and ordered employees and customers to the ground. For those who have not been through this kind of incident, it is difficult to imagine the kind of fear that must be present when someone bursts into the middle of your business day, points an automatic weapon at your head and threatens to blow it off if you don't do what you're told -- fast.

It is not uncommon for victims of these kinds of robberies to be struck, shoved, or pistol-whipped while the criminals quickly go about their business.

The effect on the victims is lasting. A lot of the bank employees never returned to their local branch to work after such an incident, and sometimes, the psychological damage is even worse. People leave their jobs on disability and learn to live in fear.

We can't always control when crime will intercept our lives, and we can't always control the outcome.

But it is worth thinking in advance of how to react to someone with a gun.

The main thing is, the gunman will want money or valuables, and it's just not worth dying over the injustice of this. It's almost always best to do what you're told and cooperate with an armed robber.

Because, as angry as you will be over someone taking your property, it's just not worth giving them your life to take as well.

Stopping the sale of local politics

By Christopher Cabaldon
City Councilman, West Sacramento

The voters of West Sacramento voted overwhelmingly for campaign finance reform last November, and now the City Council has the chance and the obligation to keep faith with their wishes.

In the most recent election we and the rest of California enacted Proposition 208, the tough campaign reform sponsored by Common Cause, the League of Women Voters, and the American Association of Retired Persons. The initiative put strict limits on both contributions and spending in statewide and legislative campaigns. It also requires cities to consider campaign finance restrictions in local races. This presents an excellent opportunity for the West Sacramento City Council to enact a comprehensive reform ordinance.

What should real campaign reform look like?

First, special interests must not be able to buy influence. Among the major contributors to City Council campaigns since incorporation are a long list of corporations and other interests with direct financial ties to the City through contracts and franchise licenses -- Waste Management, our garbage collector; Sonic Cable, our cable television operator; Kronick, Moskovitz, Tiedman & Gerard, our contract law firm. The First Amendment forbids us from directly banning special interest campaign contributions, but we can -- and we should -- impose a very low limit on the amount any contributor can give. I support a limit of no more than $100 per individual, contribution, or political action committee.

Second, campaigns should be competitive based on the issues, with no candidate able to buy an election. When local voters supported Proposition 208, we wanted to cut the amount spent on political campaigns. I will propose a voluntary spending limit of 75 cents per registered voter -- about $10,000 for each candidate. That would be a real reduction in campaign spending, while still allowing candidates to get their message to the voters. Every candidate who has successfully challenged an incumbent Councilmember spent less than $10,000. Incumbents, on the other hand, often spend much more. A $10,000 limit would put all candidates on a level playing field.

CHRISTOPHER CABALDON
City councilman

Finally, our campaign laws must be vigorously enforced. Three years ago, one political action committee skirted the law and contributed $1,000 to a single candidate. In the most recent election, the whole range of campaign laws were flaunted and twisted. Whether due to ignorance or trickery, a few candidates and their backers disguised the source and amount of contributions and hid the amount actually spent. Even our simple local ordinance protecting neighborhoods from campaign sign clutter was flagrantly violated. Despite all this, no enforcement actions were ever taken. Without independent enforcement, campaign laws are toothless -- a lesson that candidates learn all too quickly. Perhaps we should take a page from other cities and establish an independent ethics commissions to be the watchdog for political campaigns.

Politics is a contact sport, and we cannot expect or even want to make all campaigns perfectly polite and civil. A rough-and-tumble debate is the essence of democracy, and we ought to relish it. But that does note mean that we have to accept the corrupting influence of money and lawlessness that is creeping into our system of choosing our government. The voters have spoken, and now we ought to enact true reform.

Nursing scholarship

On May 8, San Joaquin Delta College Scholarship Committee is offering the 1997-1998 scholarships at Atherton Auditorium. Delta College, Stockton, at 7 p.m.

For many years I have presented the Mary Ann Fugina Memorial Nursing Scholarship in memory of my sister, a public health nurse. It is a $300 scholarship given to a student completing the first year with a 3.5 GPA with the intent to further a career in the field of public health. I bring this to the attention of our graduating class or graduated who are interested in this field. Delta College is a fine school. Public health or nursing is an honorable and fulfilling career.

Unfortunately, having recent heart surgery, I will not be attending this year's program, but I will enjoy hearing from the recipient.

There are so many scholarships being offered in all fields that go wanting. I feel very strongly that our students must be made aware of this and be encouraged to check them out each year.

Healthy pregnancies

Over the past five years I have worked closely with many mothers who have taken the journey to recovery from alcohol and substance abuse for their sake and especially for their children whether born or unborn. Their stories are powerful and in the spirit of Mother's Day I have asked them to share their experiences with your readers.

"A mother writes: I've been sober for 21 months. What a journey! I came into recovery 7 1/2 months pregnant. It is frightening as we don't know the full effects of alcohol and drugs on a fetus. When I was pregnant with my first and second child I had hypermensis (excessive vomiting). I told my doctor I was smoking marijuana for nausea so I could eat. The doctor's response was that it isn't good to smoke anything while you're pregnant but if it helps you eat...As an addict that was all I needed to hear to continue using while I was pregnant.

"Fortunately one of the times I was hospitalized for hyperemesis, another doctor suggested the marijuana was dehydrating me and causing the hyperemesis. I was scared and decided to get sober shortly afterwards. Even pregnant, addiction can have a firm grip on women. Addiction is a disease with very little choice. It is chronic, progressive, relapsing and potentially fatal.

"I was referred to an out-patient perinatal substance abuse treatment program run by CommuniCare Health Centers, where I built my recovery foundation. While attending the program I learned about my disease, parenting, received counseling and most importantly a lot of support. The element of support is very important in the recovery process with someone always there to remind me -- I CAN STAY SOBER NO MATTER WHAT."

We invite you to join with us this Mother's Day in support of more effective prevention, education and treatment. Together, we hold the greatest promise for healthy mothers, children and families.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered 3 feet 4 inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. This measurement was taken at low tide and is not an indication of the gauge of the stream at high tide, for at this writing there is an average raise of about one foot at every high tide.

Frank Janik moved his family into the service station he built lately across the street from West Sacramento headquarters. Janik is a millwright by trade, having learned his business in the old country, and the job completed by him lately is a credit to any builder. With his wife he intends to make his future home in the district and for a business will have the oil station, serving gas, oils and other necessities for automobiles. In a week or two he expects to install a soft drink stand near the station, selling ice cream, tobacco, notions and other household necessities. The living quarters of the station consist of three rooms, beautifully fitted with Janik's handiwork.

Mrs. B. Moss has returned to her home from Pacific Grove, where she spent a few weeks recuperating. She was greatly benefitted by the visit to the seashore and may return there some time in the near future.

E. L. Blackington has been confined to his home for the past few days with a dose of rheumatism. Yesterday he was somewhat improved but is still confined to his home.

At the auto service station on Fifth street, conducted by Fraser & Doyle, a rootbeer stand has been set up and will be in charge of another man, in addition to the force already at work at the station. It is the intention of these boys to give the best possible service, and with a growing trade they felt that the great amount of travel on the highway warranted the placing of a rootbeer stand at the station.

Miss Annie Nolan of San Francisco and Miss Mollie Armstrong of Slough House were visitors at the Leinberger home last Tuesday. They returned to their individual homes on Wednesday evening.

G. E. Leinberger, father of Walter Leinberger, with his two daughters, left Sacramento last Monday to visit Canada and be present at a convention of the air brake officials of the several roads in Canada and the United States. Following the convention he and his two daughters will travel throughout the east for several weeks, visiting at New York, Philadelphia, Washington, New Orleans and other points of interest. At the Southern Pacific depot Monday evening a great crowd of friends assembled to bid them farewell, so that it appeared to those who were not on the inside that Leinberger was about to be married again. They do not expect to return to their home in Sacramento for about two months.

The Canteen Oil Station, just west of the subway at the end of Fifth street, has established a rootbeer station in a part of the building. In this place also the proprietors, Partridge & McNally, will also maintain a place for soft drinks, ice cream and other summer delicacies. A growing trade has prompted these men to expand their business, for since they have been in the location they have continuously moved ahead with the approval of the traveling public and the people of the neighborhood who know them.

A Japanese team of baseball players direct from Japan will play an all-star team picked from Washington and Sacramento players at the ball grounds in West Sacramento next Sunday.

The visiting team learned to play in Japan and it is going to be a curiosity for many to see if they really play baseball as it should be played. This visiting team believes itself capable of meeting some of the professionals and the game next Sunday will be witnessed by several great players of Sacramento to gauge the strength of the visitors.

Edward Butters and family of Rio Vista spent last Sunday in Washington as the house guests of friends and relatives.

WASHINGTON BOOSTERS' CLUB WILL HAVE CLEAN-UP AND PAINT-UP WEEK AS SOON AS PROPER ARRANGEMENTS CAN BE MADE

Although only a small attendance was present at the Washington Boosters Club last Tuesday at the town hall, many proposals were made for the advance and benefit of the community.

Attention was called again to the fact that automobile drivers after crossing the bridge from Sacramento and passing the public school building seem to have no regard for the speed limit, although road signs have been placed indicating that a school is to be passed. The secretary reported that notification had been sent to Supervisor Beardslee and he had been requested to ask traffic cops of the county to give the matter attention.

The membership committee of the club reported that no progress had been made in securing increased membership but promised that before next meeting there would be an improvement. One business man who had been reported as speaking in a deprecating way of the club was reported to have apologized.

The question of dues was left over until a committee on by-laws would report, which was expected to be next Tuesday evening.

Attention was called to the fact that a new survey of the town was being made and that the old stakes or monuments had been entirely obliterated.

To straighten up this question an original map of the town was brought forward which had been published in the Independent on November 6, 1914.

Complaint was made that the sidewalk from the end of the bridge to the town hall is now in poor condition, having been left that way when the county road was built from the end of the bridge north to Elizabeth street.

The secretary was instructed to write to the division superintendent of the Southern Pacific Company, calling attention to this matter and also calling the attention of Supervisor Beardslee to the question.

Subsequent action was taken in relation to the naming of a committee to interview the division superintendent of the Southern Pacific Company, asking his help in the matter.

The committee appointed by the chair consists of Mrs. P. A. Hart, Mrs. Ray Peek and Mrs. W. Painter.

Whether it be sewerage, decaying offal or smoke from the rice mills or refuse from the slaughter house or odor from the gas works in the Sacramento, the question was brought up that when a south wind blows there seems something in the air, especially in the evenings, that disturbs the nasal sensibilities of some people.

For a time the blame was thrown on the slaughter house, then on the rice mills, again on the gas works and finally on the sewerage from Sacramento.

At any rate it was decided by the club that something must be done to abate the nuisance, for, at times, it becomes very obnoxious to the people. J. Pereira was appointed a committee of one to investigate conditions at the slaughter house and report at the next meeting of the club.

The question of garbage collection caused considerable comment. Piles of old cans lay around in the back yards of homes or are being thrown into the gutters by householders. On that account it was proposed that a clean-up day be held in the near future so that every householder can have hauled away everything that is detrimental or useless.

Supervisor Beardslee will be interviewed by Ray Peek to ask him to provide a hole or dumping ground where old cans and other refuse may be dumped.

Rev. Ellis Purlee of Sacramento made a wonderful talk on municipal advancement. He showed how an organization like the Boosters Club can be of material benefit to the community, but he wanted to see more of the men of the community present at the meetings.

T. D. M. Slaven, another business man of Sacramento, was present at the meeting and drew attention to the fact that Washington could grow, would grow, and was about to grow, if only the people would stand together and boost the community. Los Angeles was built on a desert, he said, and Chicago was built on a swamp.

Following his remarks, a committee consisting of J. Pereira, Ray Peek and P. A. Fitzgerald was appointed to induce the men of the community to attend the Boosters Club meetings.

Slaven also drew attention to the condition of the levee between the Southern Pacific bridge and the M street bridge. Here could be found any day or evening a bunch of loafers who simply passed time sunning themselves in a most unusual and unhealthy way. Some victims of canned heat can be found here stupidly dozing in the sunlight and this condition could easily be remedied, for if other towns were blessed with a similar condition there would be a beautiful park along the river fit for enjoyment of young and old.

By unanimous vote the thanks of the Boosters Club was extended to the strangers who addressed the club, after which refreshments were served by Mrs. J. McNevin.

TAX DELINQUENCIES DOWN TO MINIMUM

Woodland, April 30.—Tax delinquencies will be as light this year as ever before, according to the first survey of the records just made by County Tax Collector R. W. Woods. At the outset is seemed that there would be a heavy delinquent list, but the rush of Monday reduced all chances of this being an abnormal season. It reflects the fact that the property owners are able to meet their obligations and are prepared for an off year, such as this is promised to be because of the light rains.

CANALS BEING CLEARED OUT BY DRAG-LINE DREDGER

West of the main canal in a direct line west from the Catholic church in West Sacramento a drag line dredger is being operated by the John Phillips Company of Oakland, clearing out the drainage and reclamation canal that extends from that point to the western levee.

The dredger is operated on a 45 horsepower Holt caterpillar base and equipped to turn in any direction.

This dredger is also equipped with electric lighting so that it operates night and day with three shifs of men and two men to the shift.

The bucket used by the dredger is of three-quarter yard capacity and it is astonishing at what speed it moves along in clearing out the dirt and weeds that have practically closed the canal.

A great number of the canals throughout the district have been similarly cleaned and the work will continue as long as the funds available for that purpose will last.

Some of the larger canals that do not need cleaning so badly will be left over till next year when the work will be started again to finish all the canals in the district.

TEIXEIRA NEARLY ENTIRELY RECOVERED FROM BROKEN BACK

Woodland, April 30.—Manuel Teixeira, prominent in the Broderick district, who a year ago broke his backbone when a bale of hay fell upon him while he was assisting a neighbor in loading his produce, was in Woodland today visiting friends, practically a well man. He spent the best part of a year at hte Sisters' Hospital in Sacramento, with all odds against his recovery. Excepting for one of his legs being weak as a result of the unusual accident, he is in the best of health. Mrs Tixiera accompanied her husband to Woodland.

FILMING CORPORATION PLACES MANY LOCAL BOYS IN THE MOVIES

During several days of the past week and for several days to come several local boys have been working with Pauline Starke for the Fox Film Company, enacting the scenes of "The Man Without a Country," at the mouth of the American River.

Among those taking part in the show were Dave Barry, Seth Barry, P. Van Olinda, G. Mathena, Joe Eugene, E. Crow, Willie Dupzyk and Frank West.

The scenes were pictured at the junction of the American and Sacramento Rivers, where a crowd of over a hundred and fifty people in all were present to depict scenes that were originally enacted at the junction of the Ohio and Tennessee Rivers.

Barges, artfully constructed as replicas of those that were wont to float down the Ohio and Tennessee Rivers in the period at the beginning of the last century, when the region west of what is now Pennsylvania was termed the "Unknown West," have been floated past a battery of moving picture cameras, and then towed back again to repeat.

Men, women and children, garbed in the picturesque habilaments of the hardy pioneers of that day, with their equally picturesque household goods, have occupied these barges.

The moving picture prototype of Aaron Burr, the man whose killing of Alexander Hamilton in a duel in 1804 wrecked his political career and caused him to embark upon what at that time was considered a treasonable conspiracy to separate the West from the remainder of the United States and found a dynasty of his own, has landed and embarked; has talked "sedition" with Lieutenant Philip Nolan, all for the purpose of providing sequence leading up to picturing Nolan as "the Man Without a Country."

Four weeks ago Harry Bailey, business manager associated with the Fox Film Company, under the direction of Director Rowland V. Lee, came to Sacramento with a corps of artisans. The site at the juncture of the Sacramento and American Rivers, previously selected personally by Lee as the ideal location for his purpose, was transformed from a tree-studded section of wilderness into a beehive of activity.

Stage carpenters skilled in "make-believe" hewed logs and sawed planks, and within a space of three weeks an exact replica of Fort Massac, an outpost of the American army of 1805, which was located on the Ohio River at the junction with the Tennessee, was erected.

Scenic artists, experts in their line, supplanted the carpenters, and with the aid of paints and natural products, transformed the raw lumber into the appearance of the old fort and stockade, with moss-grown log walls, blockhouses at the corners, make-believe cannons, ponderous gates, barrack rooms, headquarters building, stores, a blacksmith shop, and even down to the seemingly inconsequential details of pens for oxen, sheep, hogs, chickens and horses.

Ordinary farm animals were used and the runaway, which, by the way, was filmed five or six times before the action was sufficiently co-related to suit Director Lee, was absolutely real.

In spite of the possibilities of injury to Hearne or to some of the other participants, and in spite of the fact that the runaway was repeated over and over again, even the horses escaped without a scratch.

WASHINGTON BABES MAKE FINE SHOWING AT CLINIC

Of sixty-two children censussed by the Red Cross of Yolo County a few weeks ago and varying between the ages of two and six years, forty-five were examined by a medical clinic held last Monday afternoon in the public school building.

Of the forty-five examined only two were found to be out of average weight or proportion for children of their age. One was found to be overweight and one two pounds under weight.

This is an excellent showing for the babes of the town and indicates not only splendid care on the part of the mothers, but an extremely healthy and sanitary condition in the community.

The balance of the sixty-two will be examined at a later date and a final report made to the Red Cross of Yolo County, who provided for the clinic.

The clinic consisted of Dr. Beebe and Dr. W. L. Bates of Woodland, accompanied by Miss Rozzie Carrow, Red Cross nurse of the county.

They reported before leaving for Woodland that the Washington clinic was the largest that had been in Yolo County and the results obtained in the way of prevailing conditions were better than found in any other section of the county.

At the meeting of the Washington Boosters Club last Tuesday night the thanks of the club were unanimously tendered to the members of the clinic and the secretary of the organization was requested to write to the members of the clinic, advising them of the action.

nance the cost differential between the somewhat limited bus service now existing to and from Woodland and the roughly doubling of said service which would include hourly Airport bus service, what costs could accrue to RT? Apparently an increase in Paratransit, Inc. costs for transporting the disabled. But RT Board itself claims, "Not sufficient demand," so this sounds more like an opportunistic fee-grabbing scheme. West Sacramento and YoloBus should counter this by proposing to discontinue the YoloBus Route #240 (limited service between downtown Sacramento and West Sac's Industrial Area -- WITHOUT LOCAL STOPS IN WEST SAC/DISCOURAGING THOSE JOBS FOR WEST SACRAMENTANS) and then allow RT to take over this route BUT ONLY IF AND UNTIL RT approves the proposed YoloBus' #42 Airport bus service.

Other ridiculous excuses: 1) "If it were an RT route/service, I'd vote for it, but coming from such a small provider as YoloBus, it sounds like a financial liability Sacramento cannot afford." (BUT IF "BIGGER WERE ALWAYS BETTER, THEN HOW COME ORANGE COUNTY - THE WEALTHIEST CALIFORNIA COUNTY - WENT BANKRUPT?) 2) "It would only service downtown Sacramento (directly), so it would be unfair to the rest of Sacramento." (If that were logical, Light Rail would never have been built, since it also "does not serve on RT's district equally!) 3) Although the national Amalgamated Transit Workers' Union/ATWU national office supports YoloBus' #42 Airport service, the local ATWU rep claims that, "If it's from outside the Sacramento County, it (YoloBus) can't be any good!" (If that were the case, remove all federal and state monies from Sacramento's economy, right?) The ATWU rep does not realize that once in place and demand builds up, anything beyond the proposed hourly airport bus service means more jobs for ATWU's RT bus drivers. (RT and ATWU "lost those jobs and routes" after Prop. 13 hit Yolo County back in 1978, Yolo being one of the least wealthy in California.)

Some more sensible reasons why airport bus service should be approved: Fares would only be $1.00 each way for year one and $1.25 for year two. This compares with about $15 for van service and $28 for one-way taxi between airport and downtown Sacramento. Also, last we heard, most of the taxi drivers actually cancelled their insurance once they obtained their special permits to do the runs between Sacramento and the Sac Int'l Airport; hence, most taxis are operating uninsured.

RT Board already knows that I-5 between the airport and downtown Sacramento can be quite crowded. This is why Capital City was talking about an I-5 bypass through West Sacramento. Could hourly and (eventually) every half hour bus to/from airport prevent these costs?

If this YoloBus #42 was approved, it could have opened the door to substantial taxpayers' savings by reducing public employees' expenses such as: 1) Car rentals; 2) Airport parking; 3) Taxi fares -- from mostly uninsured operators.

Since Sac Int'l Airport serves 17 Northern California counties, it is hard to understand why Sacramento (City/County) should have sole authority. Seems like reps from all counties should have a voice in this. And since the Airport Authority supports the YoloBus' #42 proposed airport bus service and airport is just off the federal highway I-5, maybe the FAA should look into this matter.

Why should Sacramento Int'l Airport continue to be the only major airport in California NOT to be served by regular bus lines? Sacramento is not "just another city," IT IS CALIFORNIA'S STATE CAPITAL! State leaders should also examine this and wonder aloud amongst themselves: "Why no airport bus service?"

With welfare reform approaching us soon, both counties would see improved service between their county seats and with all of the Yolo County Courts now in Woodland, this latest denial will not only continue to adversely affect low-income Yolo County residents not in Woodland, but others who must financially support them at continued higher cost.

Even though Natomas has once again been approved for residential building, is Sacramento still interested in running a sewer line through West Sacramento down to Elk Grove rather the more expensive route of tearing up Sacramento streets and enlarging its sewage lines? And will either plan solve Sacramento's problems of untreated sewage going into the river during heavy rains downtown? Cooperation is a 2-way street.

The Sacramento Area Council of Governments supports the airport bus service not only for some previously noted reasons, but to reduce smog as well.

To continue to deny this YoloBus service -- even if Sacramento has to bear the cost of Paratransit -- could violate the Americans with Disabilities Act. Wake up, RT Board!

Sacramento Fair starts Thursday

The Sacramento County Fair opens for its 60th annual season this Thursday, May 8, and runs through Sunday, May 11. This year's event, held at the fairgrounds at Cal Expo, will focus on the celebration and positive promotion of Sacramento's youth. "Our goal for this year's fair has been to produce and promote an event that showcases the youth of Sacramento in an entertaining, educational and fun environment," said Steve Weaver, new CEO of the Sacramento County Fair. "We've also removed the fee for attending the fair. By offering free admission for everyone, more people will be able to enjoy this event."

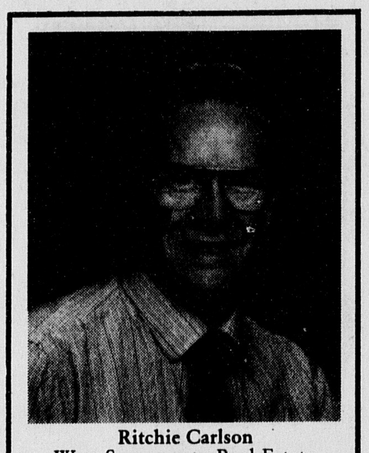

To celebrate opening day of the fair, there will be a ribbon-cutting ceremony at 10 a.m. on Thursday, May 8, at the east gate near the racetrack. To kick off the event, the Sacramento High School Band will be performing. Community representatives will be on hand to witness the fair's opening: Larry Bowler, State Assembly Member; Don Nottoli, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors; Glenn Fait, Mayor of the City of Folsom; Christina delaCruz, Mayor of Galt; Roberta MacGlashan, Vice-Mayor of Citrus Heights; Joyce Terry, President of the Elk Grove Chamber of Commerce. To my mom, Lupy Alcanter, from your son, Ernie.

When I am sitting alone in deep thought,
My thoughts are of you.
As I think of the times we had
And things we sometimes did,
Then I think of the games we played
And the places we went.
And whenever I am low
I think of the smile you bring,
I also think of the happiness that we share though the years.
Through good times and bad times, through laughter and tears.
So this comes to you, straight from the heart.
Thank you mommy for being my friend and until the end,
You will always be my sweet mother
And my best friend.
This is your day, so enjoy it.

of the city. Therefore, the city could adopt a campaign spending limitation of about $30,000 (since there are about 30,000 residents in West Sacramento), and donors could give up to $250 apiece to a candidate's campaign until that limit is reached.

Nearly all city council candidates have reported spending less than $30,000 in their campaigns during the first ten years of West Sacramento's cityhood.

Other campaign reform ideas which have been mentioned for possible discussion by West Sacramento city council members include revising the law concerning independent campaign spending in support of a ballot measure position or someone else's candidacy; requiring detailed campaign finance information to be maintained on the internet, and several other ideas.

The Prop. 208 workshop will be held as part of tonight's West Sacramento City Council meeting, which begins at 7 p.m. at 2101 Stone Blvd. near Park Blvd.
